Rulings

Senate delegates to the Dean, UQ Graduate School and the Director, Student Administration its powers to approve spending of funds if the expenditure is for a scholarship or award funded by bequest, donation or special grant. This delegation is made in terms of section 11(3) of the University of Queensland Act 1998.

Senate: 10 April 2014

Terminology

Dean

UQ Graduate School Dean.

Stipend

A scholarship to support living costs that, in UQ's case, is equivalent to UQ Graduate School Scholarship (UQGSS) rate.

Top-Up

A supplementary payment in addition to their base stipend at the UQ Graduate School Scholarship (UQGSS) rate.

UQ Graduate School Scholarship (UQGSS) rate

A rate equivalent to the Federal Government Research Training Program (RTP) minimum amount, which provide living scholarships to Higher Degree by Research (HDR) candidates.

Philanthropic Scholarship Categories

Travel

Recommended for domestic and near region travel (e.g. within Australia, Pacific Islands, NZ, PNG, East Timor and Indonesia).

Travel Plus

Recommended for global travel.

Top-up

Funds to supplement a Higher Degree by Research Candidate's base stipend rate.

Partial Top-Up

To partially supplement a Higher Degree by Research Candidate's base stipend rate.

Living

To cover a Higher Degree by Research Candidate's full stipend.

Living Plus

For scholarship support at the highest level¹. This can be used to support a stipend scholarship, and tuition fees if applicable.

Grant

A payment to support a Higher Degree by Research candidate's research.

Assessment

Scholarships must be awarded through a transparent and competitive process.

All applications are assessed using the following set of criteria at a minimum:

- Overall requirements as outlined in UQ's research degree eligibility criteria*
- Academic achievement and potential for scholastic success.
- Applying within the round deadlines and submitting all required documentation.

*If a travel award as standard students should:

- be a confirmed HDR candidate at the time of application.
- be enrolled full-time at UQ (part-time students are eligible to apply but must be enrolled full time while overseas).
- have no overdue milestone at the time of application.
- complete their travel before the Thesis Review milestone.

Payments

Continuing payment of scholarships is conditional on the satisfactory progress of research students. All scholarship payments cease on the submission of the thesis.

Payments of scholarships can only be made upon approval by the Dean, who will base the decision upon the need to preserve the capital, how accurately the selection process has followed the rules and how open the call out for applicants has been.

Terms and Conditions

All senate scholarship recipients must adhere to the conditions of UQ research and travel scholarships, including reporting and progress requirements.

- For Living and Top-up scholarships, recipients must adhere to the conditions of UQ's Research Scholarship General Conditions.
- For Travel and Travel Plus scholarships, recipients must adhere to:
 - Any changes to the destination, purpose, or dates of travel requires prior approval from the Graduate School. Failure to obtain the approval may forfeit the award. Retrospective changes will not be approved.
 - Applicants must seek approval for the proposed activities and travel from their Principal Supervisor before submitting an application.
 - Applicants are responsible for arranging appropriate UQ travel insurance.
 - Travel must be completed before the Thesis Review milestone. Applicants who intend to travel immediately before, or at the time the milestone is due, may be required to submit an application for an extension to the milestone on research-related grounds.
 - Any unspent funds must be returned.
 - Successful applicants must submit a report, and a reconciled budget with scanned copies of airfare and accommodation receipts within one month of their return.
 - Applicants must demonstrate that additional funds are available to supplement the award, if required.

Holders of these senate scholarships must acknowledge them in any paper that is published as a result of the research conducted while the recipient held the scholarship.

Donors may also invite the recipient to present on the work conducted as part of the scholarship, in which case they are encouraged to comply or risk losing the scholarship.
